The Bible: word commonly used to describe books of Old and New Testaments. From Greek word biblos book in English. Difference between Old and New Testaments shown in Hebrews - taught Christ brought into being new and better Testament cf: Hebrews 7:22, 8:6-13, 9:15. English word testament comes from Latin word testamentum meaning covenant. OT divided into 3 groups. Law - 1st 5 books of Moses known as Torah and Pentateuch, which also means 5 books. Prophets, - collection of 21 books which include major and minor OT Prophets. Writings - 13 books. NT consists of 27 books that naturally divide into 4 parts: Four Gospels, Acts of the Apostles, Epistles and Revelation. Epistles are 21 books - primarily teaching or doctrine. 13 are known as Pauline, written by Apostle Paul. Then 8 General Epistles written by other Prophets. Hebrews written by unknown writer and in opinion of many learned men written by Apostle Paul. Who else with such knowledge and inspiration was in Rome at the time? Bible is remarkable. Teachings divinely inspired. Non-believers account for Bible on natural rather than supernatural grounds. Doctrine of Inspiration asserts Bible revelation did not/could not originate in mind of man. Bible claims "inspired" - "God breathed" in Greek cf: II Timothy 3:16. Bible claims men of God "spake" as moved Greek word "carried along" by Holy Spirit II Peter 1:20. Verses teach scriptures did not originate in human mind and are not human product and cannot be accounted for on natural grounds. Bible contains miracles contrary to ordinary human experience, but not contrary to reason. Given Being of God, miracles and the extraordinary not contrary to reason. Not that Bible different from other religions because man evolved in thinking and became better. Concepts found in Bible so different from societies of ancient world different as night and day. Moses came from polytheistic Egypt meaning many gods, Abraham came from polytheistic Ur, which came concept of one God? Not that Bible is better revelation than Egyptian, Babylonian, Greek, or Roman religion. Bible altogether true/others altogether false.
